About Hahnemühle

Established in 1584, Hahnemühle invented the digital artist papers fifteen years ago and is considered the pioneer of exclusive and above all durable papers for photography and art reproductions. The papers – for more than 430 years made in the paper manufactory – are provided now with an ink receiving layer that does not affect the feel of the paper. The paper offers in conjunction with the so-called inkjet coating for photo prints rich colors, a wide color gamut and sharp details.

International artists exhibit their work on the more than 20 different papers from Hahnemühle's portfolio. In the world of photography and collectors prints on Hahnemühle paper have a great reputation. The papers "Made in Germany" are sought-after in 80 countries around the world.
